WEEK 3

Ten days comprise a Faerûnian week, also known as a tenday or less commonly, a ride. Referring to the week as a ride is more common in the nation of Cormyr, probably due to the predominance of mounted heroes and the fine horses of that realm. The individual days of the tenday do not have names. Instead they are referred to by number: first-day, second-day, and so on. Most folk start counting using their thumb as first-day, but Halflings are famous for using their pinkies to count first-day, so much so that the phrase “counting like a Halfling” means that someone is being different just to be difficult.
